OUR SUPPLY CHAINS

Typically, our major suppliers fall into one of the broad categories outlined below:

- Direct materials suppliers, such as for the supply of metals and separators
- Indirect materials suppliers, such as for software and services.
- Capital Equipment suppliers, such as machinery for battery assembly

FORCED LABOUR RISKS

We understand that the supply of some of our direct materials, namely metals, lithium-ion components and battery separators, can give rise to the highest forced labour risks, particularly in the Uygher Autonomous Region of China.

As part of our initiative to identify and mitigate our highest risks we have systems in place to:

- identify and assess our highest risk areas in our supply chains through our due diligence and audit processes;
- mitigate the risk of forced labour and child labour occurring in our supply chains through a series of self-evaluation surveys and on-site audits as required through the acceptance by suppliers of our Social Responsibility Code;
- monitor potential high-risk areas in our supply chains from a combination of spend, geography, and financial risk assessments; and
- protect whistleblowers.

OUR POLICIES

We have appropriate policies in place that underpin our commitment to ensure that there is no forced labour or child labour in our supply chains or in any part of our business. We continuously review and update our policies.

Our Human Rights Policy makes explicit our commitment to ensure forced labour and child labour is not taking place in any part of our businesses or in any part of our supply chain.

Our Code of Ethics is communicated to our employees, suppliers and contract workers which requires individuals to report any wrongdoing, including but not limited to human rights violations like forced labour, child labour and human trafficking. All reports are fully investigated and appropriate remedial actions taken when warranted. Our Integrity Helpline is available in 16 languages for individuals to raise concerns or report any alleged wrongdoing.

OUR ACTIONS

Clarios is an early signatory of the United Nations Global Compact (UNGC) and fully supports the UNGC's Ten Principles which are based on the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. As part of our commitment to the UNGC, we produce an annual Communication on Progress. The latest published version can be found on the website of the UNGC.

Clarios has also published a Declaration of Principles, with respect to our commitment to human rights and environmental standards, which is available publicly on the Clarios.com web site.

In addition, Clarios has certified a number of our manufacturing plants with the SA8000 Social Accountability International Standard, which is focused on human rights standards within the principles of the UNGC. The eight key standards are based on internationally recognized principles including the International Labour Organization Convention, Universal Declaration of Human Rights and national laws. For Clarios, the principles behind SA8000 are part of our every day, embedded within our work culture and reflected in our Code of Ethics. Clarios continues to monitor and measure our performance in the eight areas including in the Standard through the implementation of management systems by plant level Social Performance Teams.

Finally, any supplier categorized as potential high risk for human rights violations is required to complete our third-party due diligence process, which includes the screening of their supply chain. Those suppliers cannot be utilized until that process is completed and approved.

SUPPLIER ADHERENCE TO OUR VALUES

We are committed to providing safe, quality products and services and we have zero tolerance for forced labour and child labour. It is our goal to work collaboratively with our suppliers to exceed our customers' increasing expectations, achieving outstanding performance through best-in-class products, services and processes. We expect our suppliers to conduct their operations in a socially and environmentally responsible manner, aligned with our values and our Code of Ethics.

To ensure all those in our supply chain and contractors comply with our values and ethics, we require all suppliers to adhere to the Clarios Code of Ethics and all applicable laws and regulations, including complying with the standards on labour, health and safety, the environment. All suppliers are expected to comply with our Supplier Expectations Manual and our global Supplier Corporate Social Responsibility Codes (CSR). We expect our suppliers to be committed to principled decisions regarding people, communities and the environment, to respect human rights and avoid modern slavery, and to foster a workplace that provides a safe environment, does not discriminate and empowers people to speak out without fear of retaliation

In addition, Clarios' global standard contract terms contain a clause by which suppliers undertake and commit that they will adhere to the Clarios Code of Ethics.

Environmental performance and sustainability information on our major suppliers has been gathered through the Clarios Supplier Sustainability Rating Survey, the Supplier Assessment Survey, and other means. Any major supplier providing products and services to Clarios is expected to complete these surveys, which are used to perform due diligence on and evaluate major suppliers, communicate our expectations, and ensure suppliers' compliance with applicable laws, including in relation to slavery and human trafficking.

TRAINING

As an enhancement to our employee annual ethics training and certification, Clarios has available to all employees a training module which enables employees of Clarios to spot and respond to the signs of forced labour and child labour human trafficking and allows employees to anonymously report any suspected violations. This training is available at any time for employees through our learning management system and is assigned for completion to key employees on a biennial basis. We continue to improve our sourcing processes, benchmark our standards and audit our approach against regulatory requirements and available guidance.
